Jennifer Morris

Chief Executive Officer, The Nature Conservancy

In her role as CEO, Jennifer leads a global conservation organization of nearly 5,000 team members that partner with communities across the globe to overcome the barriers to climate and biodiversity solutions. Working together, they develop breakthrough tools and ideas, amplify local knowledge, influence decision-making in pursuit of a world where people and nature thrive.

For more than 25 years, Jennifer has dedicated her life to protecting the environment for people and nature. She was previously president at Conservation International \(CI\), where she developed enduring programs, partnerships, and innovative strategies using business development as a tool to protect nature for the well-being of humanity.

Jennifer is a passionate storyteller, avid outdoors enthusiast, and mentor to the future generations of conservation leaders. She lives in Washington, D.C., with her husband and daughter.
