Odile Conchou

Senior Advisor on finance and biodiversity

Agence Française de Développement (AFD) / French Agency of Development

Odile has 30 years of experience in environment and biodiversity. She began her career in ecological and agronomic research institutes in France and Germany. She worked as an environmental engineer in an agro-industrial union, became General Secretary of the French association of professionals in ecology and then a consultant in sustainable development. She joined the French Agency of Development in 2006 where she held various positions, notably Head of the Environment, Social, Governance and Impact Department of PROPARCO (AFD's private sector arm). From 2019 to 2022, she was the focal point for the financial sector and for the TNFD at the Secretariat of the Convention on Biological Diversity. She holds a PhD in Ecology from the French National Center of Scientific Research.
